

Preparation for Inclement Weather

Dear Families,

Per The National Weather Service, we are anticipating severe weather conditions that may require a pivot to remote instruction.

If school buildings are closed, school will be in session remotely. Students in kindergarten and above are expected to log on and participate in their classes from home; please note the exceptions below.

EXCEPTION: Due to the professional development day, students that attend high schools and schools that serve only grades 6-12 are not scheduled to attend school on January 26. School will not be in session remotely for those students. All other students – including students who are in grades 6-8 in K-8 or middle schools - are expected to participate in remote learning.

Work with your school to ensure your child has a working, internet-enabled device at home. If you are not sure of your child's NYCPS Account username and password, please visit selfservice.schools.nyc or ask your school for help. Children attending LYFE or a 3K or Pre-K program in an elementary school or Pre-K Center should participate in the remote learning experiences outlined by their program. For information about digital learning tools, applications, and platforms used by the New York City Department of Education, please visit schools.nyc.gov/digitallearning.

Your school will stay in close communication with you regarding the upcoming inclement weather predicted to affect New York City beginning January 25 and the potential shift to remote learning on January 26. If you have any questions, please reach out to the principal or parent coordinator at your child's school.

Sincerely,
New York City Public Schools
